Websites

I do freelance work for personal website design and maintenance. Below are three websites I've created for my clients, as well as a personal website for my tutoring service.

Joseph Horowitz Website

- General: Joseph Horowitz is an award-winning author and historian who mainly studies classical music in America. I worked closely with him to migrate his former website to this updated version, which I designed. The website works to showcase and market his writing, blog posts, and more.
- Used: Wix

Grant Dance Website

- General: Words to the Wise is a biweekly newsletter aimed towards older people. It features articles that cover a wide variety of topics, ranging from food to travel. I created the website and the newsletter functionality, and I update the website regularly.
- Used: Wix, Mailchimp, Zapier

Frog Coding Website

- General: Frog Coding is my coding tutoring service. I created the website this summer to allow parents to book classes and to view my portfolio.
- Used: Wordpress

Software Development

I'm fluent in coding languages such as Python and HTML/CSS/JS, and I've used them to visualize aggregate datasets and create web applications. I've also used game engines such as Godot (GDScript) and Unity (C#) to create award-winning video games.

Cab-ra Cadabra! The Evolution of Taxis in NYC 🚕

- General: "Cab-ra Cadabra" is a project I created for my Advanced Computer Science class in my sophomore year of high school. It is a dynamic client-server web application that utilizes publicly accessible datasets from NYC's Taxi and Limousine Commission to generate graphs of different relationships between the taxis and rideshare apps that cruise around the city.
- Used: Python (Flask, json), HTML/CSS/JS, SVG

A Pawsitive Impact

- General: “A Pawsitive Impact” is the nationally recognized game I entered for the 2024 Games for Change Student Challenge, for the theme “Recycle the Runway.” The game is a classic stealth game with a twist, and features enemy AI, a health and level system, custom lighting, and more. Most of the game assets were designed by me.
- Used: Godot, Aseprite

You've Got Mail

- General: “You’ve Got Mail” is the regionally recognized game I entered for the 2021 Games for Change Student Challenge, for the theme “Resilience Through Games.” The game is a platformer that follows a mailman delivering a letter during the COVID-19 pandemic. Most of the game assets were designed by me.
- Used: Unity, Aseprite

Graphic Design

I've used several design softwares to make graphic designs for a variety of purposes.

Miscellaneous Flyers

- General: The first design was created for a talk by Judge Wendy Li of the Civil Court of Queens. The second design was created for a page in the engineering portfolio for my robotics team. The third design was created for a fundraising event.
- Used: Canva

Logo for Yomie's Rice x Yogurt

- General: I created this logo for Yomie's Rice x Yogurt, a popular yogurt shop based in Asia.
- Used: Adobe Illustrator, Adobe Photoshop

Artwork

"Amalgamation", drypoint

“Smile Like You Mean It”, oil on canvas

"Canis lupus", ink on paper
